Report Speakers Bureau

Our speakers bureau expanded the number of engagements this election season. We had a total of 13 speaking engagements as well as the videotaping with the City of Burbank. Although there was some work involved, we all had fun in what was a very rewarding experience. Thanks to all the speakers involved, Tom Carson, Renee Leask, Mary Dickson, Laurie Collins, Joan Hardie and Anna Rundle. A very special thanks to Tom Carson for not only getting us organized in creating our speaking engagement calendar but also in writing the useful scripts to the propositions. Tom has earned yet another title, scriptwriter, adding to all the other hats he wears. We are always looking for speakers, so if you're interested in helping out the League in a visible and useful way please let me know with an email.

Election 2010:

Secret Money, Incivility Leave Lasting Impact

League calls on Congress to fix secret cash in American elections

Washington, DC – The League of Women Voters of the U.S. reflected on the midterm elections today, expressing grave concern about the conduct of the 2010 elections.

“The impact of election 2010 goes far deeper than which party controls the House or the Senate,” said

“The tens of millions of dollars in secret money spent in this election are a recipe for scandal.”

Elisabeth MacNamara
National League President

Elisabeth MacNamara, national League President. “The tens of millions of dollars in secret money spent in this election are a recipe for scandal. Voters were overwhelmed by millions of dollars in negative ads but didn't know who paid for many of them. Pay-to-play politics won't change until we know who the special interests are who are pouring money into our elections,” she said.

“This election demonstrated the critical need to improve our governmental structures,” said MacNamara. “Because of the failure of Congress to act, there are no disclosure requirements governing the huge amounts of money that the Supreme Court recently turned loose in American politics. Voters will be hard pressed to know if their elected officials are in Washington to serve the public interest or the special interests.”

“The incivility and tone of the 2010 campaign reached a disturbingly new low in American politics,” added MacNamara. “Not only was this evident in the advertising, but we also saw it in candidate debates and forums and in the public discourse.”

“The League calls on Congress to pass the DISCLOSE Act, which would restore transparency to U.S. elections by requiring disclosure of corporate and union spending in candidate elections. We also call on Congress to preserve and extend ethics enforcement. With the election awash in special interest money, it is no time to cut back on the enforcement of ethics standards in Washington.”

“The money poured into recent elections has been unprecedented. The League believes that voters, not money, should be at the center of our democracy,” concluded MacNamara. “We will continue our decades of work in helping citizens debate the issues in a civil and effective way and fighting for transparency, accountability and disclosure in America's elections.”

The League of Women Voters, a nonpartisan political organization, encourages informed and active participation in government, works to increase understanding of major public policy issues, and influences public policy through education advocacy.

The League never supports or opposes any political party or candidate. We advocate only on issues that members have studied and come to a consensus on. In an era of proliferating and powerful special interests, the League's advocacy in the public interest is increasingly recognized as an essential voice of democracy.
